ery of the Combination.

LINCOLN, Nov. 19 .- (Special.) -The revolt and disintegration of the "allied forces of reform" which was predicted early in the year is rapidly approaching and the democrats are completing plans to take the remnants of the show in under one canvas. The first move in this direction was to gain control of the popocratic newspapers and during the whole of this year the so-called "reform press" has been subsidized by the national democratic committee in order that cratic leaders of this state and by a representative sent here by Governor Stone of Missouri, and arrangements were made to was organized, it is said with a capital stock of $200,000, to take care of the polit-ical patent sides of the newspapers of this state, and it is further intimated that the scheme is to be so far-reaching as to indude the regulation of the "reform" newspapers of Missouri and Kansas. The business is to be done from a democratic standpoint and on a line with the policy of the national committee of that party, being virtual notice to the populists that fusion is out of fashion. To make sure that there should be no hitches in the program no populists were admitted to the meeting or to membership in the new company.

Will Boom Stone for 1900. While Jim Dahlman and other local leaders are active in the scheme, it is certain that most of the capital is to be furnished by Governor Stone and by prominent democrats in the east, the ultimate purpos being to keep the country newspapers in line and gradually boom Governor Stone for the presidency in 1900. Just where Bryan comes deal cannot be ascertained and it is said that his presence in the city has no connection with the matter. It cannot be learned whether the "reform press" business new presided over by wick Saunders is to be absorbed by the new company, or that it is to be squeezed leaning toward straight democracy and it is known that for the last three months he has been anxious to sell out, so it is bable that satisfactory terms will be reached for the deliverance of the Saunders business to the democratic company. In order that the protest from the populists of this state may be made as feeble as possible, the purchase of the state organ of the populists here at Lincoln is contemplated, and one of the Missouri emissaries as been figuring on the plant for the last few days, representing to the local populists of the Burrows-Sheldon stripe that he The few populist leaders who are not willing parties to the new scheme are making a vig-rous protest. This afternoon Lyman, the 14-year-old son of Dan Whitcomb, and three cousins, drove seven miles southeast of Beatrice on a hunt. Arriving at their destination, the boys stopped to reload their guns, which they had emptied en route. Lyman meanwhile sat down on the ground with a 32caliber revolver in his hand. Lying near him was a rabbit which one of the boys had shot. Several boyish expressions had been exchanged, when one of the cousins glanced over his shoulder to where Lyman sat, and as he did so he saw the boy place the revolver to his head, following the action with this uncompleted remark:

At 10:30 tonight the coroner empaneled a jury to examine into the case. A number of witnesses were examined and a physician was called to make a postmortem, but it was afterward decided unnecessary. The uncompleted remark of the boy would indicate that he had committed suicide, yet it is possible the weapon, which was an old one, was discharged accidentally. After being out about an hour, the jury returned a verdict in accordance with the foregoing statement, but refrained from saying whether they thought it was accidental or not, the verdict virtually, by its peculiar wording, meaning nothing.
